

REGIONAL OFFICERS OF ADMISSION OF THE ROCKIES

What is a Regional Representative?

An admission officer based off-campus and out of the institutions home state. They typically work from home offices. Most still have on-campus responsibilities that would include file review and application decisions. The strong connections to the college counselors in the region often place regional reps in a position to disseminate general college search advice.

How we are a resource?

ROAR members are available to present on a variety of topics at college fairs, junior nights or individual classes. These topics include how to write a college essay, why go out-of-state, interviewing tips, how to make the most of a college visit, case studies and other related topics. We are also happy to host a ROAR group event at your school.

If you're looking for a speaker, visit our contact form at www.roarregionals.com.

What is ROAR?

The Regional Officers of Admission of the Rockies (ROAR) are composed of college admissions professionals who represent colleges and universities outside of the state of Colorado. Members work closely with students and families in Colorado while partnering with high school and independent counselors throughout the state. All of these out-of-state institutions are RMACAC members. They have dedicated the necessary resources to have a regional office to serve Coloradans by providing information on educational opportunities for them out of state. ROAR was started in 2008 with five member schools.

Counselor Appreciation Events

We would love to see you at one of the ROAR counselor appreciation events held throughout the year. There will be great food, conversation and time to brush up on member schools. Invites will be sent via e-mail as we near the event date. If you would like to be added to the ROAR database to receive invites to our counselor appreciation events, submit your contact information on the "join our e-mail list" section of our website. Hope to see you at one of these events!

There are 33 college and universities represented in ROAR!
